THIS 163-YEAR-OLD RESIDENCE on Bayou St. John, once a Spanish customhouse, has been sold at auction for $21,800 to Dr. and Mrs. I. M. DeMattes.

Bayou St. John Landmark Sold

Old Spanish Customhouse Auctioned at $21,800

The old Spanish custom house at 1300 Moss, on the edge of Bayou St. John, has been sold at auction to Dr. and Mrs. I. M. DeMattes for $21,800. It was announced Tuesday by Latta & Blum, Inc., agents.

The city landmark, which was built in 1784, was the home of the late Mrs. Helen Pitkin Schertz. It was sold for the account of Miss Marie Netziger.

The picturesque 163-year-old residence is Colonial in design with pillared galleries and quaint dormer windows, and is said to be as sound today as when it was first built with slave hands.

The chain of titles on the land where the house stands has been traced in notarial archives to the time of Bienville, when Santiago Laurens acquired the tract February 5, 1721. A brick in the house's attic is dated 1784.

The house was sold by Jacques Laurens to Eli Beauregard in 1807. Since then it has been owned by M. Louis Blanc, Louis Sere, Louis Fortin, Pierre Amanuel, Albert and Mary Roux, Mrs. E. A. Vandergriff, Mrs. Sarah B. Shaford, Mrs. Schertz and Miss Netziger, according to agents.

During the Spanish regime, tradesmen and flatboatmen, bringing their wares down the Mississippi and through Lake Pontchartrain, passed through its portals to pay tolls to Luis de Blanc, a Spanish customs official.

An advertisement in the Louisiana Courier of October 30, 1807, informed mariners in the Bayou St. John that on November 2 "a toll will be received by the collector residing at the settlement of the bayou, on every vessel whatever coming from Lake Pontchartrain into the said bayou by the channel which the Orleans Navigation Company has made."

The 18-inch thick walls may be seen in the passageways. The grounds are landscaped and planted with flowers, and the home is a show place during the New Orleans Spring Fiesta.

"It's all about MONEY, again!"

Good money management in the home will help to protect your children from the sense of insecurity which handicaps many throughout their lives.

by DR. MARY FISHER LANGMUIR, Director, Child Study Department of Vassar College; President, Child Study Association of America.

Grownups aren't the only ones concerned about money. Children are quick to sense insecurity, and this fear may have permanent effects upon their lives.

When Mummy and Daddy wrangle over bills, or complain about never having enough money, they may not realize that young ears are taking it all in—and storing it away.

A child who lives in such an atmosphere of anxiety may get the feeling that the whole family is a failure. This often accounts for poor marks at school. Or he may grow up with the idea that money is everything.

The whole family suffers

And this sort of thing is equally bad for parents. How can they enjoy the children under such circumstances, or get any real fun out of life? It may even be that the children will begin to take sides in money quarrels, thus increasing family tension and friction. Or the strain and anxiety at home may handicap Daddy in his job.

Where families follow a wise money plan, they can feel more relaxed about the future, and begin to enjoy the present. Mother and Daddy—and as soon as they are old enough, the children too—should sit down and agree upon what they want most out of life, and what they can and cannot afford to spend.

Large or small, the family income should be used according to certain broad rules—so much set aside regularly to cover payments coming due such as rent, taxes and life insurance; so much saved up for emergencies; and so much for daily living expenses and recreation.

The main thing is to know what you are doing all the time. The whole family will feel happier and more secure if you are free from unforeseen money troubles and emergencies.

Watch for Family Message No. 15 in this newspaper, about two weeks from now.

HOW TO PLAN FOR FAMILY HAPPINESS

Regardless of the size of income, any family can have more happiness and fewer worries by planning the use of the family money.

First: provide in advance for payments coming due, such as rent, taxes, mortgage charges, life insurance and other insurance. The easiest way is to bank small amounts each payday that will add up to the totals when due.

Second: set aside something extra each payday in the savings account until you build up an emergency fund.

Then you know what is left to spend on everyday family needs such as food, clothing, recreation—and what you can afford to set aside for such future family plans as a new home, education, travel.

Because the life insurance companies and their agents have long helped people to plan for family security and happiness, they are conducting this program of information as a public service to the 73,000,000 owners of life insurance and to every American family.
