

Terra Madre Day: Wednesday Dec 10

Slow Food New Orleans is celebrating Terra Madre Day on December 10, 6-8p at the Southern Food and Beverage Museum, 1504 OC Haley Blvd. Please join us as we celebrate this day of "Mother Earth" and share many incredible experiences and stories from our recent trip to the Slow Food international gathering Salone del Gusto e Terra Madre in Torino, Italy.

Fifteen Louisiana residents made the trip to Italy to present our workshop "Louisiana is Washing Away", during which we shared the challenges and joy of living in the unique and fragile region that is Coastal Louisiana. We also learned how Good, Clean and Fair Food is practiced around the world from 3,000 delegates that represented 160 countries. Our celebration of Terra Madre is free and open to the public.

southern cuisine

Chef Ryan Hughes of Purloo will be serving an apertivo (Italian happy hour) during our Terra Madre Day celebration at the Southern Food and Beverage Museum. Chef Hughes will also serve an Ark of Taste dinner for anyone who desires to dine at Purloo after our Terra Madre Day program. Purloo is very close to opening in SoFAB. So, stay tuned for more information on Purloo's opening and details on the Terra Madre Day aperitivo & dinner.

Our good friends at Grow Dat Youth Farm just launched their annual Growing the Green campaign. These fabulous holiday gift cards allow you to share Grow Dat's incredible work with friends and family.

Grow Dat's Jabari Brown was a Slow Food New Orleans delegate to Terra Madre and will be sharing his stories & experiences at our Terra Madre Day celebration. Please support Grow Dat as they are a beautiful example of how Good, Clean and Fair Food can change the lives of New Orleans' youth.

The Slow Food New Orleans garden in Faubourg St. John just produced its first harvest of greens that were immediately sold to neighborhood restaurants Pagoda Cafe and 1,000 Figs. Revenue created by the sale of produce will support the garden and eventually fund a Slow Food Garden in Africa. Please contact Gary Granata if you are interested in volunteering in the garden ... and please visit Pagoda and 1,000 Figs for some Good, Clean & Fair Food.

Slow Food New Orleans appreciates the support of the Mothership Foundation, sponsors of the Mid-City Bayou Boogaloo.
